BACKGROUND

Unitar is a United Nations Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR) programme. It is a web-based programme that provides training and research in the field of road safety. The programme is designed to help countries and organizations to improve their road safety performance. It is a free of charge programme that is available to all interested parties. The programme is based on the Decentralize Cooperation Programme (DCP) which is a United Nations initiative to promote the decentralization of services and the participation of citizens in decision-making. The programme is a key component of the DCP and is designed to help countries and organizations to improve their road safety performance.
