

The diagram shows base ten blocks arranged to represent the number 67. There are six tens rods (each composed of ten unit cubes) and seven ones units (single cubes). The blocks are organized as follows:

- Tens Rods: Three are in the top row and three are in the bottom row.
- Ones Units: Four are in the top row (to the right of the first two tens rods), one is in the bottom row (to the left of the first two tens rods), and two are in the bottom row (between the second and third tens rods).
